

Christianity Explored Preferred

I have run Alpha in a village setting, both in a person's home and also using a village centre. The food side of the evenings went well, but found that the time needed was a good hour for the meal. We found that folk either loved or loathed Nicky's style of talk, also that they were too long for some folk's concentration. I also feel that the timing of the 'commitment to Christ' evening is too soon in the course as those attending don't know enough of what they are 'buying into.' Having since run some 'Christianity Explored' course, these seemed to work better. They encourage a person to read Marks Gospel (from week one), they include home study work and, to my surprise, each person entered fully into this format. If you want any more information and help with training discussion group leader you can contact me.

Trevor Dickerson, Outreach UK, 06/01/2008

Posted on the Rural Evangelism Network Website www.ruralevangelism.net